Dedication

In his many years at Castlewood High School, he has endeavored to improve the minds of the young people of the community through his high level of instructional ability in the field of science. His achievements in the field of coaching are unparalleled.

He has not only attempted to educate and coach the youth but, he has tried to instill a sense of value, purpose, and sportsmanship within the minds of his players and students.

For all this and his 16 years of service to the Castlewood community, we dedicate the 1980 edition of the Castletonian to Coach Buddy Poole.

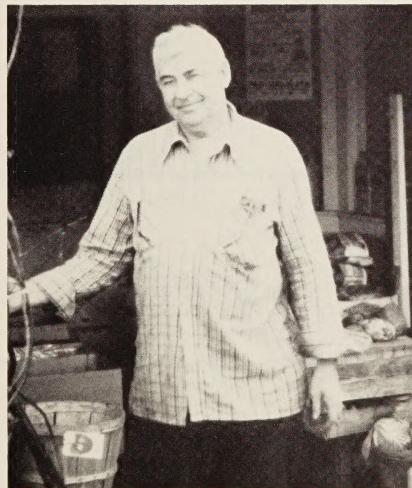

SPECIAL RECOGNITION

We would like to recognize Mr. Eugene Campbell for his many outstanding years of service to the Virginia Education System.

Mr. Campbell has been involved with the Virginia School System for 40 years. He first came to Castlewood as a social studies teacher in 1957. In 1963 he became Castlewood's assistant principal. Mr. Campbell is now General Supervisor for Russell County Schools.

For his dedication, friendship and leadership. We would like to give special recognition and thanks to Mr. Campbell.

We would also like to recognize Mr. Shuler Milton.

We don't make it a practice to recognize members of the community, but we feel that Mr. Milton deserves special mention for his years of service to the people of Castlewood and especially to the students of Castlewood High School.

Mr. Milton has been a supporter of our school for many years, and for his support we would like to say thank you, Shuler.

TEACHER'S LITTLE HELPER, Delphy Nypaver.

RESTING AT SCHOOL??? Sheila Osborne and Lisa Kennedy decide to stop work and rest.

SHYLY AND TIMIDLY. Jane Hartsock tries to hide her new glasses.

UP TO SOMETHING! Coach Glass appears to be hiding Tammy Buckles, but at the same time pointing to where she is.

CUTEST COUPLE??? E. W. Hall and Freddie Hubble are more than happy to have their picture taken.

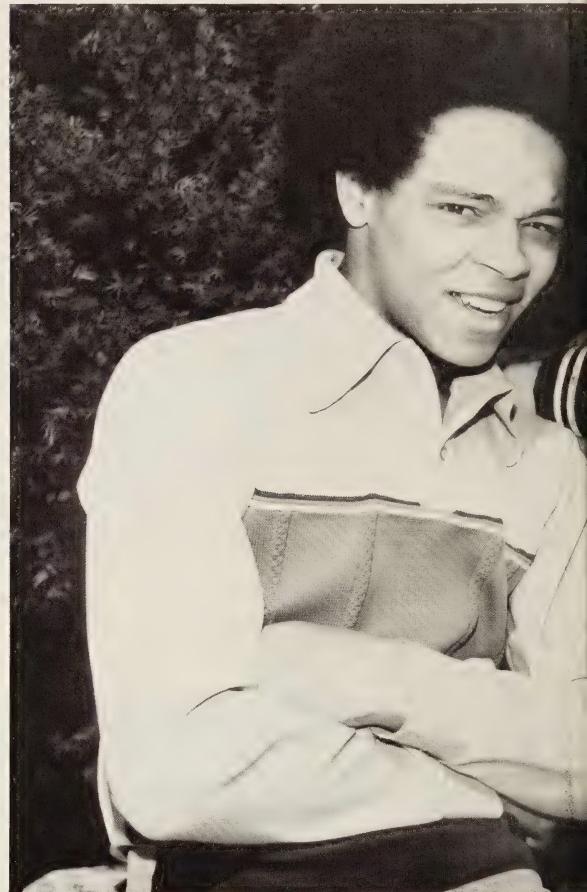

Different Strokes

Agony and Pain — Sheila Osborne's face tells the whole story of school.

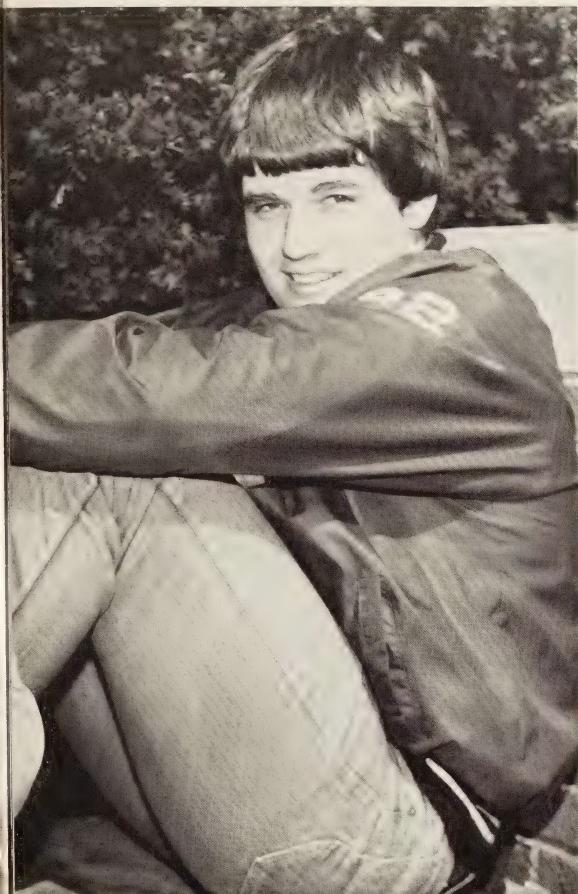

Whiplash or a cold neck?
Which does Wayne Mullins have?

Besides the computing of square roots, mixing of chemical solutions, and diagramming sentences, the days at school involved much more for the students. Upon the rare occasions that they encountered free time, it was spent in a variety of ways, which ranged from sleeping to mischievous pranks.

for Different Folks

Campus Cuties? Dewitt House and Charlie Collins.

"Home Sweet Home"
Carolyn Hobbs emerges from her home away from home.

A Sleepy Head — Could
Frank Wholford have fallen asleep during an assembly and no one Awoke him?

STUDENT VARIETY ADDS SPICE

Displaying Manners — Vance Owens displays his ability to laugh and chew food at the same time.

Library Blues — Kay Fields complains, "But Mrs. Elam there's no one here to talk to."

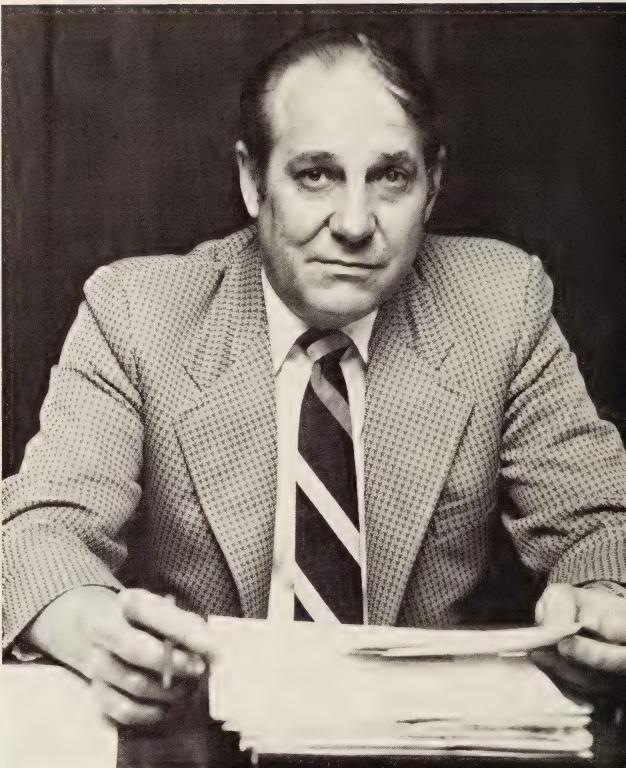

Damsel in Distress — Chris Meade is Lisa Hileman's #1 knight in shining armor.

Charles Long, Superintendent

RUSSELL COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS Paul Cassell, Castlewood; Samuel J. Miller, New Garden; Hugh Lynch, Chairman, Lebanon.

I have considered it a privilege to be associated with the students and faculty of Castlewood High School. The nobility and pride with which the building sits atop the hill in our community is reflected in the caliber of faculty and the strength and desires of our students.

The much needed and appreciated renovations which are taking place in the physical structure of our school are outward signs to everyone that the facility is being improved. The changes that occur within you, the students, are as obvious, to those of us who look closely, as the changes being made in the building.

The good things everyone sees about the building are highly heralded as outstanding achievements and improvements. All too often, however, the positive changes that occur within our students are overlooked. The mental development and maturity of our students undergo a far greater change, while at Castlewood High School, than anything that has ever been done to change the appearance of the building.

Although I do have a great deal of pride in the physical appearance of our building, it in no way compares with the heartswelling pride I feel in seeing the students of Castlewood High School mature and progress into responsible young adults and contributing members of society.

THE LAST LAYOUT...

As this year came to an end and the yearbook finally came into order, I had a moment to think as I placed the very last pictures into the last page envelope. My feelings were mixed. They were feelings of joy and triumph because at times the road seemed endless and we all felt as though we were caught in a snowstorm of master layouts, dummy layouts, copy sheets and page envelopes. But, as the realization of what was happening came to me, I began to feel a little lost. I thought of how well we all worked together to accomplish one goal, meeting the deadlines! I thought of all the inspiration and perspiration the class has put into this yearbook. But most of all I thought of how much we have all grown and learned together this year and what good friends we have all become.

Bringing this yearbook into reality has meant a great deal of hard work for all of us, but the rewards and satisfaction for the hard work greatly outweigh the trials.

As the editor, I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone on the staff and especially Ms. Norris for all their efforts in accomplishing the one shared goal, that is, publishing a yearbook that the yearbook staff, the student body, the faculty and the administration can be proud of. We, the yearbook staff, are very proud of this edition of the Castletonian and we hope that you can obtain as much satisfaction from reading it as we did from putting it together.

"Jeeny"
